

Bird Seed Selection Chart

Drs. Foster & Smith Educational Staff

Birdwatching is an entertaining and rewarding hobby. Many birders faithfully fill their feeders in hopes of catching a glimpse of brightly colored orioles, grosbeaks, cardinals, and other backyard favorites. Other birders feed wild birds to ensure that birds have a reliable food source throughout the year. No matter what your reasons are for feeding wild birds, the amount of birds at your feeder is greatly based on the food you place inside. The comparison chart below will help guide you through the wild bird seeds we offer so you can select the seed that will suit you and your wild birds.
