COMPARE OUR hummingbird feeders

The key to hummingbird happiness is a multitude of feeders around your yard. That's because hummingbirds can be territorial with nectar sources. They may try to monopolize a single feeder, chasing intruders away. However, an aggressive bird simply cannot monopolize several feeders at once, so it works to your viewing advantage to maintain several feeders.

We want to make it easier for you to select the styles and designs that work best in your yard and meet the needs of your hummingbird population. Whether you want your feeder to double as backyard décor, or simply want a basic nectar container, we've got what you need at a competitive price.

Don't forget the nectar, too, so you're ready to feed when your feeders arrive. And remember to clean and refill your feeders about every 3 days in warm weather.
